LEICESTER STATION REDEVELOPMENT

Leicester's train station is undergoing a major £22.6 million redevelopment, designed to transform it into a landmark destination in its own right. The project includes a striking new entrance, seamlessly connected to the city centre via a beautifully landscaped pedestrian boulevard. The regeneration will also introduce exciting new commercial, retail, and hospitality spaces, creating a vibrant hub for both locals and visitors.

As part of Leicester's exciting growth story, the station's £22.6m transformation will deliver a destination in its own right, welcoming residents, visitors, and businesses alike.

Funded through £17.6 million from the Government's Levelling Up Fund and £5 million from Leicester City Council, this ambitious project began in February 2024 and marks a significant step forward in the city's continued evolution.

LEICESTER EDUCATION

Academic excellence meets rental resilience.

Leicester is a thriving university city, home to both the University of Leicester and De Montfort University, attracting over 45,000 students from across the UK and around the globe. This consistent influx of young, educated individuals drives strong and sustained demand for quality housing, retail, and lifestyle services - making it a highly attractive market for investors.

The presence of two major academic institutions not only fuels the local economy but also supports a vibrant, year-round rental market. With a reputation for research, innovation, and international appeal, Leicester's education sector offers a reliable foundation for long-term growth and investment returns.
